CROWD of El Pasonns and vis- | floor is the Templars' armory and the itors, estimated at nearly 1,000 filled the elevator and staircases of the new Masonic temple, fronting Carnegle square, Tuesday night to ac-cept the "open house" invitation of El Paso lodge No. 130, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons.

For three hours members of El Paso's Masonic orders, their families and friends called to inspect the buildand friends called to inspect the building and its furnishings. Musical numbers played by the lodgemen on the pipe organs, supplemented the weekly concert of the Second United States cavalry hand on Cleveland square. Punch was served in the women's apartments and the temple was illuminated from basement to roof. Men and women who have seen the importand women who have seen the import-ant lodge buildings of the continent were unanimous in the opinion that El Paso's York rite temple is the great-est of its kind west of the Minsissippi est of its kind west of the Minissippi river and thete were many who de-ciared it the finest on the continent. Committees representing the lodge, chapter, council, eastern star, com-mandery and shrine were stationed on each floor of the building to explain details to the visitors. Only the esoteric mysteries of the allied orders and the shriners' menagerie remained under lock and key.

under lock and key.

The library, reading room and billard room, on the first floor, first claimed the attention of the crowds, entering through the south and west portals. On this floor also are the public and private offices of the secretary of El Paso lodge No. 130 and the parlor and dressing rooms for women. The west entrance and elevator lobby is finished in mottled Bowie (Ariz.) marble, which also flanks the wide starcase to the second floor. In the library a rich Spanish mission scheme has been fully carried out. The ceilings have heavy beams, the bookcases are built in, around the large room with art glass doors; the lighting fixtures are unique and the floor is covered with Bundhar Wilton rugs of harmonizing color and texture. The furniture in library and billiard room is of Flemish oak finish. It was built to order. Clubimen say that this department of the temple surpasses in its magnificence that of any clubhouse in the country. The library of books, which has been densted by members of the Masonic fraternity and supplemented by the current literature, is a most important investment within itself. The library is open to Masons and their guests at all hours.

Banquet Room for 600.

In the basement is the hanquet roomwith a scating capacity of 600, equipped with kitchen and pantry. There, also, is the steam heating plant, the machinery of the 20-massenger electric elevator and the ventilating apparatus. A system of ventilating is in operation, which changes the air in the entire building every 10 minutes. The living apartments of the secretary, George F. Morgan, also are in the basement.

Largest Assembly Hall in West.

The assembly hall on the fourth and top floor, is the largest in the west. It will seat upward of 1000 people. Its floor is covered with tan Rigo Wilton carpet and rugs. The intention is to use this big hall for extraordinary meetings of the different bodies. Especially will it be used for ceremonial sessions of the Mystic Shrine and drills of the fraters of the commandery. It has a large stage and its acoustics are perfect. It is large enough for grand lodge conventions. Arrangements are made whereby a mezzanine balcony can be udded, when more seating capacity is demanded. Its present mezzanine floor across the west end, is commodious. Bank Robbers Get $1700.

New Temple Cost $190,000.

The new temple is built of reinforced concrete and steel frame, with exterior of brown, mottled brick, trimmed with cement stone. The roof is covered with clay tile. The architecture is of the lonic type. It is second only in its beautiful details of the builders' art to the Masonic temple in Brocklyn, which cost a million deliars. Its cost, including the lots it rests on, is $165,000. The furnishings and equipment represent an investment of $25,000, bringing the total cost up to $190,000.

Plans Made For Dedication,
Each floor shows appropriate emblems in detail. The hardware on the doors, alone, cost $1600. The electric lighting fixtures which cost $3400, are the finest that have been shown here. The cornerstone was laid on Thanksgiving day, 1912. Arrangements for the formal dedication of the temple are under way and that imposing ceremony will probably be carried out next month and will be attended by Masons of high degree from three states.

The Masonic building committee, which has been in charge of the temple construction, in conjunction with Troot & Troof, the architects, and Kroeger & Hewitt, the contractors, is composed of the following men: V. E. Ware, chairman: Tom C. Lea, John D. Mason, Crawford Harvie, M. H. MacCallum, G. W. Newell, Wyatt W. Evans and Edgar W. Kayser. Escapes From Prison in Coal Car.
